

Contents

Acknowledgments

Preface

Part I: Factors that impact self-perception and the nature of relationships

Chapter 1 Historical and contemporary influences on the role of the sexes and the nature of relationships 1-14

1. Societal influences throughout the ages
2. The impact of religion on male and female roles
3. Neuro-chemical influences that affect relationships
4. The influence of literature and the media on how the sexes are viewed
5. Male and female roles in economic terms
6. The nature of relationships: Fact versus fiction
7. Building blocks for change

Chapter 2 Early relational dynamics and their impact on adult choices 15-25

1. How parental influences define one's sense of self
2. Early life experiences impact adult relationships
3. Defenses learned in childhood repeat in adulthood
4. Wounds from the past influence present choices
5. Food for thought

Chapter 3 Conditions that affect choice of partner 26-32

1. Appearance
2. Opposites don't attract but underlying similarities do
3. Looking to others to fulfill unmet needs
4. Implicit versus explicit expectations
5. Past unresolved relations affect present ones
6. Food for thought

Part II: Understanding the dynamics between personal growth and interpersonal intimacy

Chapter 4 Barriers to understanding ourselves 33-51

1. Previous maladaptive behavior
2. Unresolved past issues
3. Unrealistic expectations of oneself
4. Unrealistic expectations of others
5. Normal stress versus emotional overload

6. Misuse of anger
7. Anxiety and depression
8. Food for thought

Chapter 5 Barriers to understanding others 52-64

1. Power struggles
2. Stated goals versus implicit agendas
3. Dualistic attitude toward differences
4. Desire for change versus resistance to change
5. Dysfunctional communication
6. Behavior resulting in cognitive distortions from others
7. Food for thought

Chapter 6 Inadequate self-understanding leads to poor relationships with others 65-76

1. Expecting others to meet unfulfilled needs
2. Ignoring warning signs to hold onto a relationship
3. Codependency
4. Viewing the other person as an extension of oneself
5. Failing to express expectations and needs
6. Having unrealistic expectations of oneself and/or the other
7. Food for thought

Part III: Positive interdependency between personal growth and satisfying relationships

Chapter 7 An enhanced sense of self improves one's relationships 77-88

1. How one's thoughts affect one's behavior toward others
2. Changes within oneself change the nature of a relationship
3. Unresolved past issues play out in current relations
4. Balancing personal growth with a successful relationship
5. Food for thought

Chapter 8 The relationship and its impact on personal development 89-96

1. Relational conflicts provide opportunities for self-examination
2. Current relationships provide opportunities to heal past wounds
3. Relational change brings about personal change.
4. Relational intimacy provides opportunities for personal growth
5. Food for thought

Chapter 9 Steps for achieving interdependency between personal growth and interpersonal development 97-106

1. Relational change affects personal change
2. Cognitive/behavioral restructuring to achieve one's goals
3. Understanding in order to be understood

4. The interdependency between personal growth and satisfying relationships
5. Food for thought

Chapter 10 Case studies

107-125

1. The caretaker versus the narcissist
2. The pursuer versus the pursued
3. The power struggle
4. The codependent couple
5. Using questionnaires
6. Final food for thought

Bibliography

Appendix